PREGIS SHIP FROM STORE PLATFORM

A RETAIL REALITY:

Retailers are challenged to meet increasing demands resulting from competitive pressures and the internet retail explosion. The answer for many retailers has been to adopt an omni-channel presence which includes shipping from stores (SFS). The benefits include speed to the customer, lower shipping costs and the ability to optimize existing store footprint. However, there are also challenges in transitioning to a ship from store platform.

That is where Pregis comes in. Pregis is a leading supplier of protective packaging solutions that takes a consultative approach to evaluating and recommending the best solution for a retailer's network to reach their omni-channel goals.

CONSULTATION & MARKET EXPERTISE:

With a dedicated focus on the retail market and evolving omni-channel reality, Pregis offers a unique perspective on how to meet or exceed the retailer's growth objectives. We are well versed in the most common challenges and the best solutions for overcoming constraints such as limited space within stores, employee training and damage free packaging for a wide assortment of items.

CUSTOMER EXPERIENCE:

Our extensive track record of success with retail customers has taught us that customer experience is of paramount importance. Not only does the customer experience need to be positive, it needs to be consistently positive. When a customer receives a package, it should be damage free and exemplify your brand promise.

When shipping from several distribution points, standardizing the package is a fairly simple process. Shipping from hundreds of stores and distribution centers can be a much more complex proposition. As a result, Pregis offers multiple options that provide for a consistent customer experience, regardless of the origination point - ship from store or distribution center.

MATERIAL & EQUIPMENT OPTIONS:

Selecting the right combination of protective packaging materials and equipment is very important. As a material neutral company offering all types of protective packaging options – inflatable, paper, foam packaging or mailers – Pregis is uniquely qualified to consult and recommend the best solution to fit your operations and application from void fill, wrapping, cushioning to containment.

SUPPLY NETWORK:

With an extensive distribution network and strategic warehouse locations to supply and service your store footprint, Pregis and our partners are well positioned to provide quick turn around and adapt to seasonal demands. Pregis has worked with a number of supply chain consultants and integrators to provide seamless execution of national retail programs from concept to implementation.

EMPLOYEE PROGRAMS:

Employee safety and ergonomics are an important part of the total Pregis program. Our equipment is designed to be intuitive, user friendly, and safe for the operator.

At Pregis, we understand that training is a critical element for retail customers as a result of high turnover and seasonal employees. Training tools are readily available in a variety of formats (online videos, on site instruction placards and user guides) to insure users know how to set up and use the equipment and properly package products for shipment. Training materials may be customized for each customer upon implementation of the program.

CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT:

Consumer demands change and evolve. Pregis is well known for being a flexible business partner. As such, we collaborate with our customers on business goals and performance to insure we are providing the best platform for success - today and tomorrow. It begins with a business planning session and progresses by gathering feedback from your organization and your customers that is shared to help us continuously improve our solutions, service and support.
